Berkley High School

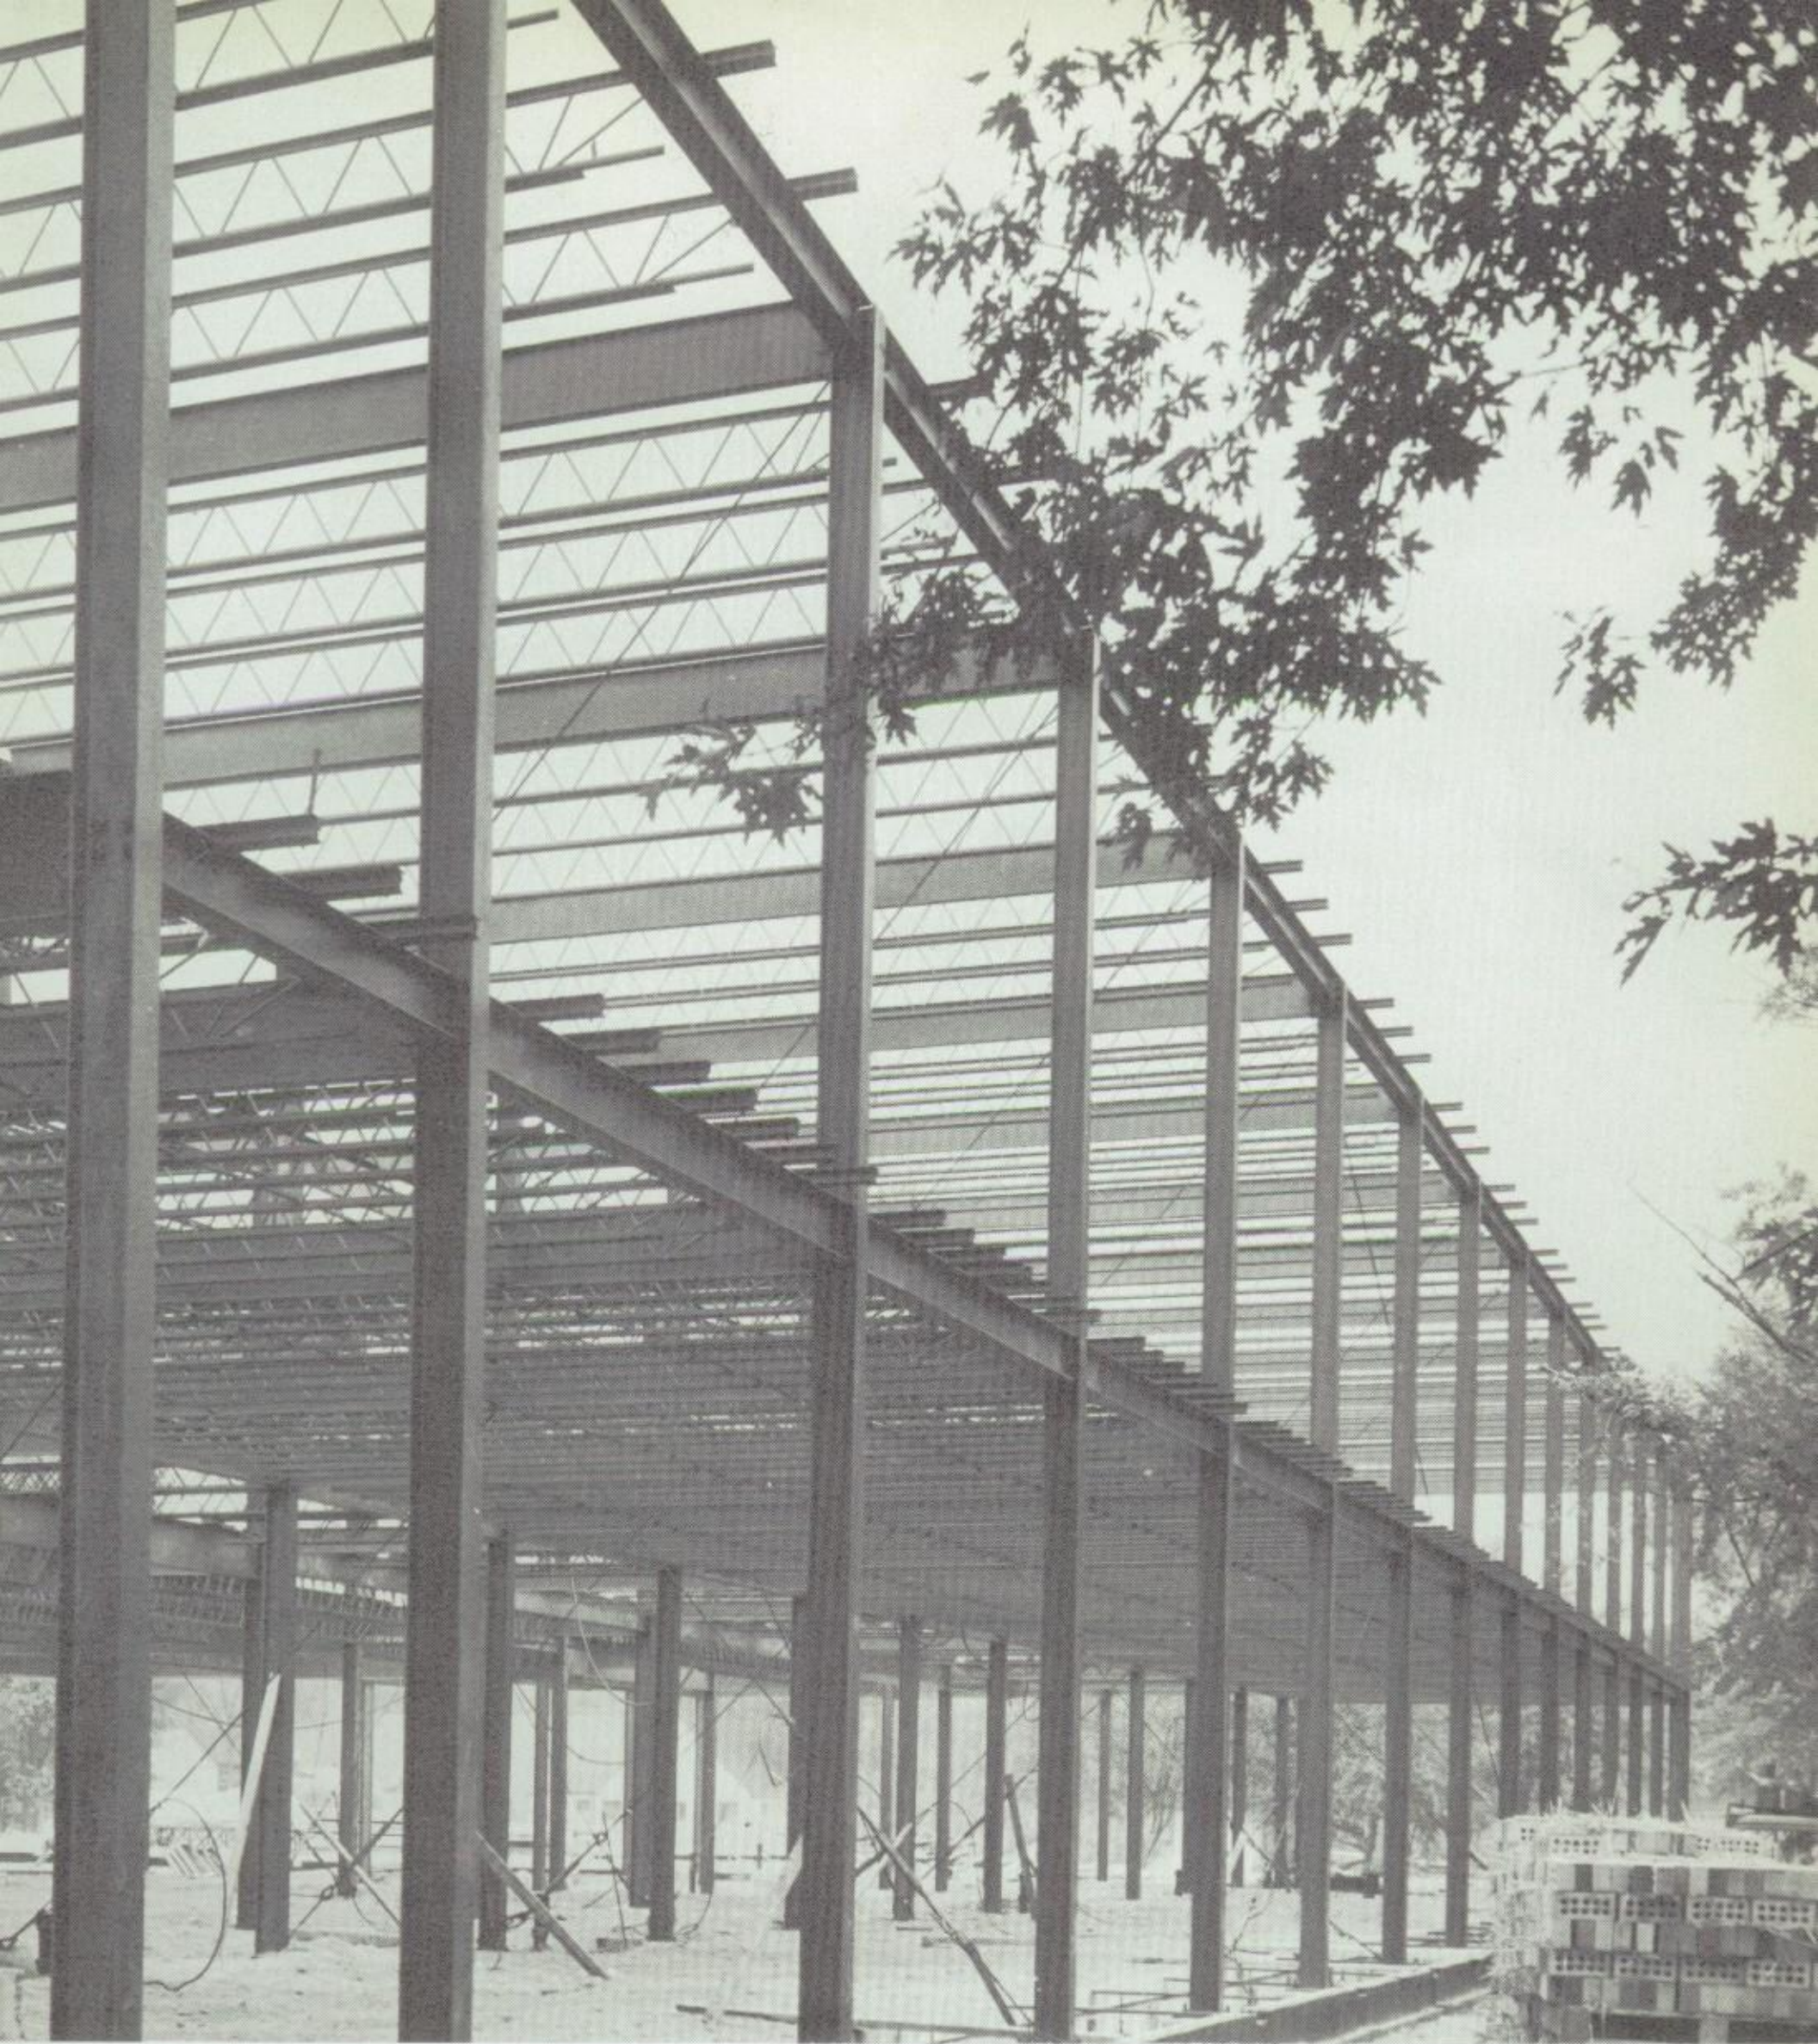

Berkley, Michigan

This impressive steel skeleton is the framework of the new addition to Berkley High School. The new two-story building will provide larger library, cafeteria and music facilities, plus thirty new classrooms for the next year's people at Berkley.

But there is far more important building at Berkley this year: in the classes, where we wrestle with words and numbers and ideas and build our minds; on the athletic fields where we run, jump, throw, tackle, bat, lift and climb to build our bodies; with the many organizations where we ski and wash cars and argue politics and learn to build together in those special moments when we build memories. In everything we do, we are building people.

This book is the story of our building.

Mr. James Dewey

Everyone notices and admires the spectacular work of the architect and the contractor; but we often forget those who keep the buildings new, after the builders have moved on. So, in this year when our thoughts have been on building, we think it appropriate to remember you, Mr. Dewey, as the head custodian of these premises and as an aid and comfort to the inhabitants thereof.

Your only reward has often been a hurried "thanks" . . . but we haven't forgotten the extras you have done for us: the long hours you stayed after your required work was complete, helping us on our projects; the way you brought order out of chaos as stage manager; the patience you showed at locker clean-up time and with the parking congestion; and most of all for the clean and pleasant building you and your staff have maintained for us.

edge even after it ceases to be a classroom assignment. To relate facts we need only a textbook; to build a mind we need a school.

In this section we will see the classes where we gain the ability to learn and the teachers whose enthusiasm creates the desire to know and understand. This is the heart of Berkley High School: for one student, the inspired beauty of a poem in English class excites a new horizon of thought; for another, the complex simplicity of a mathematics problem reveals an unexplored realm of imagination; for yet another, the creative satisfaction of an art or shop project provides the greatest rewards. The experiences differ, they mold a group from individuals, and individuals from a group: we are building our minds.

BUILDING THE MIND

Americans Haven't Spoken It for Years?

That we Americans haven't spoken English for years may be a catchy line, but it is a false statement. A quick remembrance of the objective lucid student speakers at assemblies and political rallies shows us that Americans are a fluent people. Shakespeare, Marlowe, and Shaw are studied and enjoyed. We estimated that 80% of the Senior Class watched the Maurice Evans, Judith Anderson production of Macbeth on TV, November 20, 1960. Wordsworth, Shelly, Keats, and Tennyson are all familiar names to High School Seniors.

English Literature is as vivid to Americans today as it was one or even two hundred years ago. We still sail with Ulysses, rail at the conditions of the London poor houses, watch the flying fishes on the road to Mandalay, and hold our hearts in our stomachs when the ghouls ride by. Our accent may be odd to Englishmen, but we still speak, read, and write English.

Wie geht es ihnen . . . wie geht es ihnen.

The benefits of studying foreign language are obvious: world peace is promoted through mutual understanding; the appreciation of art, music, and literature of other countries adds beauty to our lives; the opportunities for travel abroad are extensive; and many jobs are open to bilingual people because of the overseas trade.

Besides the obvious benefits, there are the fringe benefits. Language courses offer new modes of expression to us. A student can easily drop a foreign word or two — a propos to the situation — into an argument and at once impress and confuse his opponent.

Democrats, Republicans and T.V. Dinners

The highlight in the Social Studies department this year was the political assembly and mock election. The political rally was held in our gym with a student representing each candidate. They were each given a few minutes to speak, and then the student representing the opposing party defended his view. There was music from the band and choir to enliven the spirit of the rally. The walls were covered with posters; one side was given to the Democrats and one to the Republicans. Several days later the results of the campaigning were seen in our mock election. Voting machines were borrowed from the city to conduct the election. The close results were reflective of how the actual results were to come out. It was a very educational experience and gave us an insight of how our parents work for the party of their choice. Father is passing out campaign literature, and mother is working at the polls, so we have T.V. dinners to eat.

The Search for the One Right Answer

Living in a world which stresses nuclear energy and the conquering of an infinite universe, science students at Berkley are taught to meet this world and meet the hypothesis that science is a way of solving everyday problems and improving human life. Since scientific thinking should be as free as possible from any impartiality or bias, students are encouraged to observe, experiment, and thus collect the facts which seem to apply to his particular problem. Biology, Chemistry, and Physics are the courses at Berkley which enable the student to think scientifically and to recognize the fact that they are part of a ceaseless phenomenon — the world of science.

Mathematics is part of the experience of all people — it is unavoidable. It is, in fact, the very basis of this scientific, technological world. Algebra, trigonometry, and geometry, as offered here, are an extension of arithmetic to generalized and not specific numbers. Some of these courses contribute the system of logic proving fundamental space relationships based on assumptions which have been accepted or established.

All the work in this department has one ultimate goal: the "one right answer." The math science student finds greatest satisfaction in taking a series of seemingly unrelated facts, combining them, and arriving at a conclusion which can be logically proved beyond dispute in the "one right answer."

Concentration on Preparation

Our Commercial department concentrates on preparing students for the business world by offering courses covering all phases of commercial employment. Through typing, bookkeeping, secretarial methods, co-operative training, and shorthand, one will find the stepping-stones to a usable knowledge of basic skills.

Added to the textbook learning is the necessary wisdom which only experience can offer. The rhythm of busy typewriters and office machines, the swift pencil over the shorthand pad and bookkeeping practice sets are all vital parts of a miniature industry producing future executives and secretaries. The well-guided training given to these industrious hands was designed to assure future profits instead of deficits. If, in the senior year, one wishes to apply the skills learned in the commercial department, it is advisable and possible through the co-operative training program. Even those who are not going on into the commercial field will find typing and bookkeeping helpful, as these courses stress neatness, legibility, and accuracy.

Ready, Skilled and Able

Industrial Arts is mainly for those people who are blessed with manual and artistic dexterity. The shop courses provide boys with a basic background in either metals, wood, or auto mechanics. Mechanical drawing can be taken by boys wishing to pursue an engineering career. Graphic Arts teaches the layout and lettering of posters. This course leans more toward the commercial side of art. Arts and crafts teach the basic principles of drawing, painting, sculpture and ceramics.

Contrary to public opinion, home economics is not just cooking and sewing. Although the girls do learn these basic skills, they also learn meal preparation, budgeting and interior decoration. Miss Crozier also teaches child care alternate semesters. Every girl should have studied these fundamentals to be an efficient homemaker.

Health, Education and Safe Driving

Physical education balances the development of the mind with healthy exercise and recreation. Team competition and good sportsmanship are stressed rather than personal glory. Calisthenics are used to build muscular co-ordination and good posture. The athletic program is used to the fullest extent by the Berkley students.

There are over 12,000 books in our library. All students use the library at one time or another for research or pleasure. Study halls may be spent in the library. There are those who use the library habitually during study hall doing research on everything from girls to Mad Magazine. Miss Byam's friendly assistance can be counted on to help find material on almost any subject. The efficient library staff helps to file, sort out books and check them out with students. You could almost run the library on funds collected from overdue book fines.

Although driver education is now compulsory for a driver's license, it is very worth-while to take this subject. Not only do you learn how to drive a car, but you learn about carburetors, cams, and pistons. You learn how to change a tire and plan a 2,000 mile trip. Everyone who has taken driver-training is a member of the suicide club. Beware, motorists!

Our Silent Services

Long before we arrive for school in the morning; and long after we leave at night, people are at work preparing for our next day's comfort. The cafeteria staff is given the job of serving tasty nourishing meals on a tight schedule, while the custodians are responsible for the never ending task of maintaining our building. These are people whose contribution we often forget. But without them we'd be 1500 hungry people in a cold, run-down building.

We spend long, gruelling hours on practice fields and before flood lights, straining every muscle and nerve for that extra basket, that one touchdown. Occasionally, fatigue makes us ask ourselves, "Why am I killing myself for this silly game?" Then we remember: the sweat is not for the game itself but for what it represents.

To the athlete, physical and mental pleasure comes, not from the act of tossing a ball through a hoop or past a batter, but from the satisfaction of having a fit and healthy body, and the excitement of testing it in active competition. To the spectator, being part of the contagious excitement of a cheering crowd is an exhilarating change from the demands of work and study. To the school, the closeness and unity of team and spectators towards a common goal is the best builder of that elusive quality, "school spirit." Yes, we work our bodies to the point of exhaustion . . . and build them to a new point of perfection. We know that in both victory and defeat, we are the winners.

Hats in the Air

The varsity football squad suffered a season of bad breaks, coming through with only two victories in eight games. No matter how good the team or whatever the score the Bears played their hearts out until the final second.

Our pass defense due mainly to the lack of height was the main reason we met with such great difficulty in our first two games. In those games we were out scored 71 to 19.

But with the beginning of league play the Bears provided the year's most thrilling upset, defeating Farmington 20 to 19 in the last minute of play. Their last victory, over Waterford 7 to 0, came before an enthusiastic Homecoming crowd.

Cagers Downfall

For the second year in a row, the Bears acquired a new hand on the guiding reins as Ace Zographos took over the training of the basketball squad.

Although the record shows a five out of sixteen season, the Bears improved greatly as the season progressed and they gained valuable experience. With only three returning lettermen and the tallest man being six foot two inches, our cagers were heavily handicapped. However, they accepted the challenge and put up good fights against our opponents, losing six games by only a couple of points.

The season might not have been the best, but there are compensations. For instance, one of our too infrequent wins brought us the Little Brown Jug from Southfield. We also managed to beat Walled Lake early in the season; and although we lost to them later by four points, they went on to become co-champs of the league.

To give a thought to the future, our seven juniors, after their first taste of Varsity play, really developed as ball players and will form an experienced nucleus for next year's team.

Reserves Work for Future Victories

This year's reserve basketball team kept pace with its predecessor as it again maintained a better record than the varsity squad. Under the trained leadership of its new coach, Hugh Wilson, our junior varsity came through with a seven out of sixteen season.

As coach of the reserve team, Mr. Wilson had the job of combining the best talents of both junior highs to form a squad of boys that would act as a single unit on the court. He came through as the reservists gained valuable knowledge and skill in the fields of ball handling, teamwork, and most important of all, sportsmanship.

This year's reserve showed some excellent talent which, no doubt, will be added to our varsity next year and help us back to the top again.

Title Leaves Berkley

Berkley roared into and out of its wrestling season this year, starting off with a win over Lake Orion and ending with a victory over Fitzgerald.

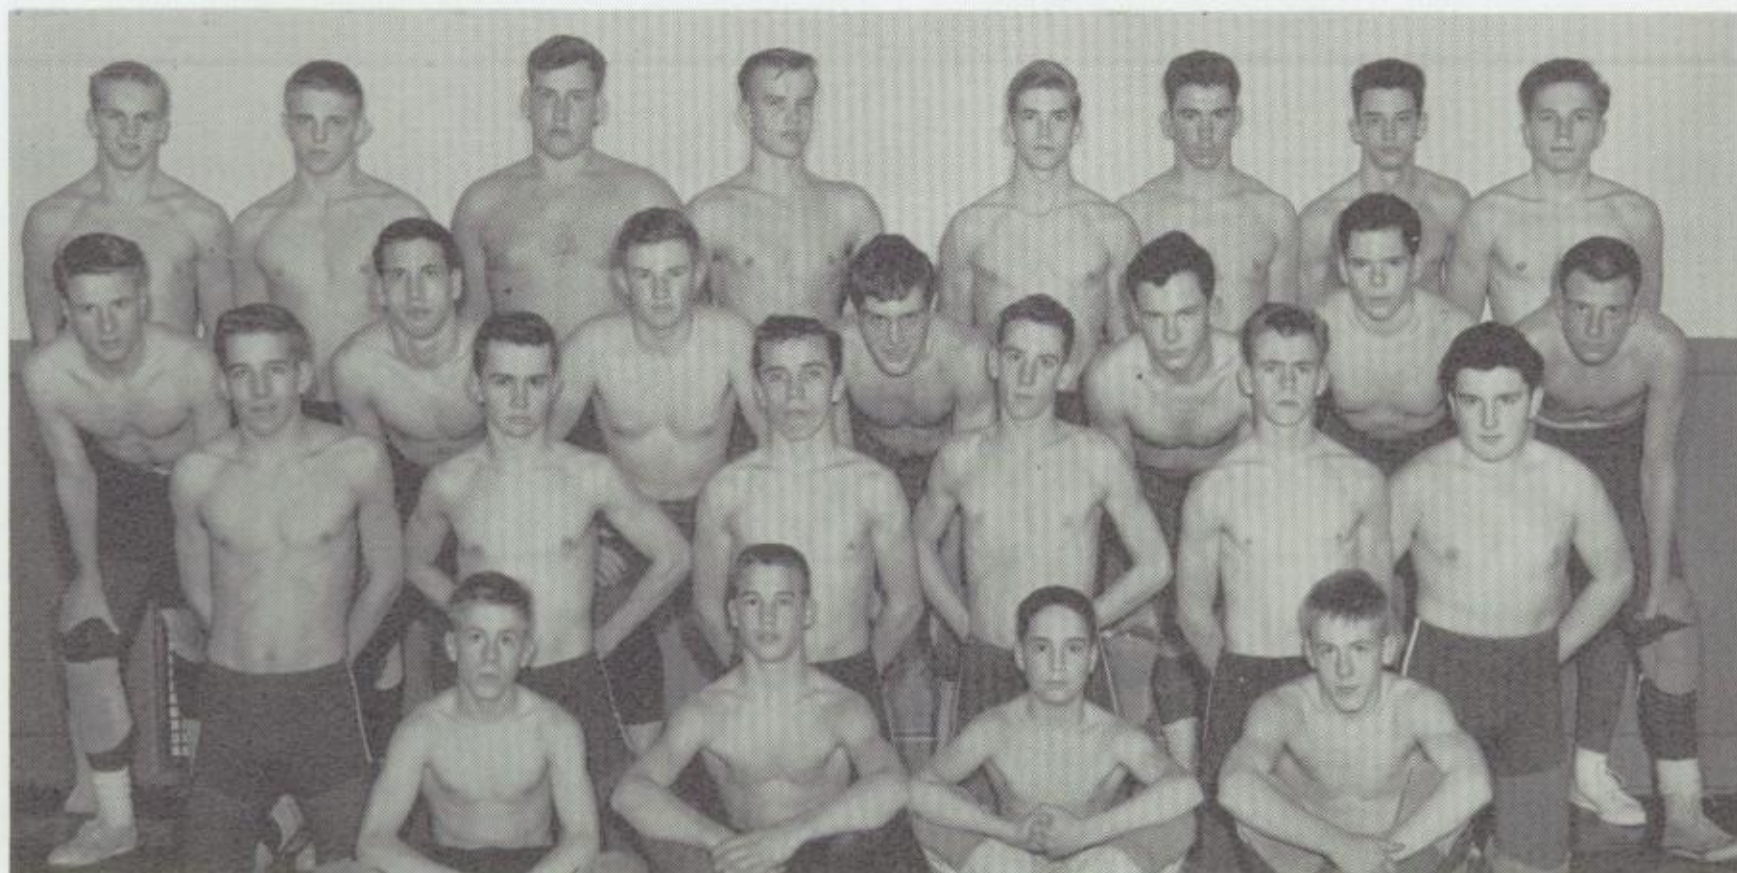

Berkley took up its old form as we made Lake Orion "bite the mats" to the tune of 48 to 3. The Bears won 8 of 11 bouts on falls, one in only 16 seconds. Coach Finley's charges carried on their winning ways, stomping Melvindale 31 to 14. River Rouge put up little struggle as our "mat-masters" took the last three matches and won going away 34 to 18.

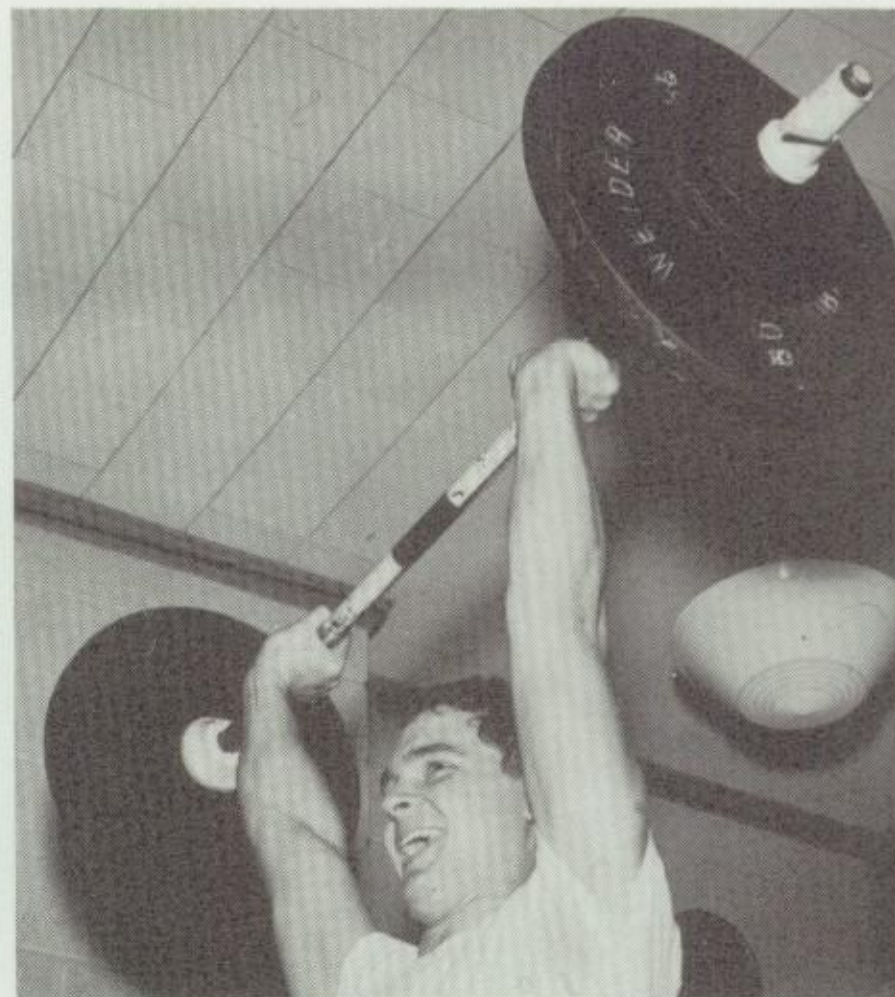

Unfortunately the triumphs were short-lived. As we slowed down for breath during the middle of the season, our standing — but never our spirit — dropped as we fought and lost our next eight bouts.

Our wrestlers bounced back to take Fitzgerald, 22 to 20. Berkley went into the last bout 19 to 20, helped by falls by Stan Ellis and Doug Oliver. Dick Parrish, a heavyweight, pulled the Bears through with a decision to put Berkley in front, 22 to 20.

Our first three matches showed what Berkley can do, and with the talent prospect as good as it is, our Bears should go a long way.

Despite many fine individual performances, Berkley's wrestling team missed the championship this year. (Names in Athletic Index)

Bar Bells, Baseballs, Bats, and Bears

Through the encouragement of Bob Lipinski and the sponsorship of Mr. Barron, a group was formed this year with emphasis on body building through the use of weightlifting and similar gymnastics. The weightlifters work out after school in room 102. They are a hearty group of muscle men; and if the enthusiasm continues, there is a possibility that a school weightlifting team will be organized for participation in tournament play.

Coach Wilson began to shape things early for the 1960 baseball season. The young boys gathered their gloves, masks, chest protectors and balls and proceeded to be tested under fire as the team's sparkplugs for infielders, outfielders, catchers and pitchers. Although pre-season predictions were unsafe, you could tell that this group would make it rough for any team to score many runs.

During the season, they were a fighting group of Bears who battled the opposing teams all the way. However, our diamond men polished off only five of their foes with sparkling victories and were clubbed by ten others.

Cross Country and Track Stars

Berkley's cross country team had a very good season this year. "Holley's Harriers" were beaten only once in dual meet competition. They were sparked by Steve Meyers, Class A State Champion.

Unlike Track, Cross Country consists of only one event, a two mile run; and it is for this that Coach Lynn Holley trained the squad. He made them run quarter miles, half miles, up hills, down roads, and even over railroad tracks. He produced an excellent team.

If you go by the won-lost record, Berkley had a mediocre track season; but we still produced a state champion and broke several school records. Steve Meyer was state champ in the 440 yard run. Berkley's pole vault record was set by Les Smith and our 880 relay time was cut. Aside from this, Coach Neil Jordan taught the boys the importance of being physically fit for the individual events and of being good sportsmen.

1960 was Berkley's bright year in Tennis. David Houghton became the first Berkley player ever to win the Class A Regional Singles' Championship at Cranbrook. He also represented Berkley in the State Tennis Finals at Kalamazoo. The team won the Wayne-Oakland Conference title. Bob Durgy captured the League Tournament Singles' Championship. Each team member worked hard in setting a record which will be a challenge to future tennis teams at Berkley High. Mr. Marnell was the successful coach.

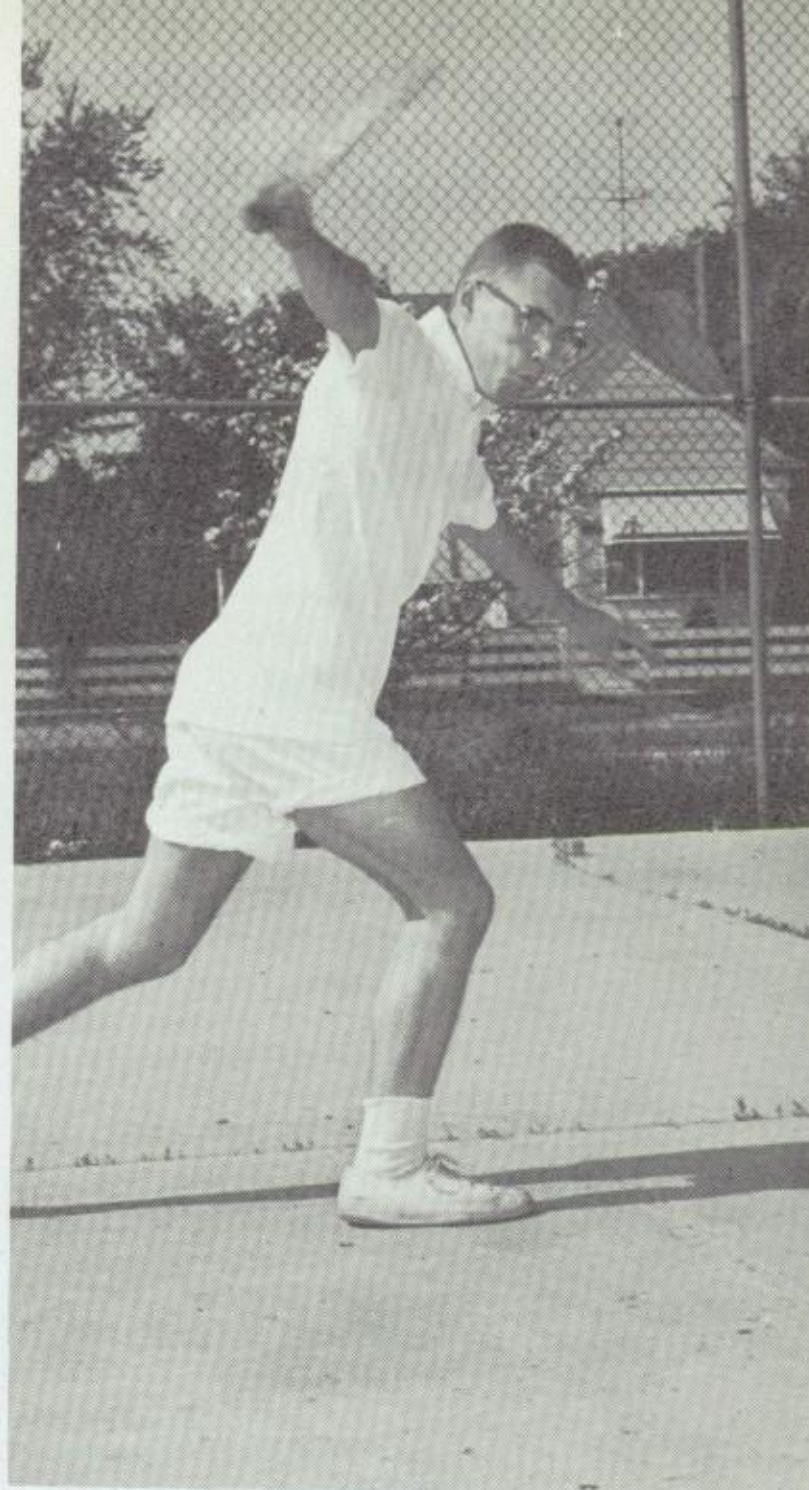

According to Mr. Brown, Berkley's golf squad had an eye on winning the league championship, but they weren't given permission from the Walled Lake team to carry home the crown. Both matches played with this team were nerve racking experiences. The first match was lost when a two-foot putt went astray in a "sudden death" play-off. In the second match a player who averaged a 43 all season came in with a lowly 48 and handed the game to Walled Lake.

Although fate gave us only second place, Mr. Brown still claims we were the best in the league.

Key Word is Enthusiasm

Vim and vigor equal victory. Berkley's cheerleaders combine loud, clear voices, lots of enthusiasm, and a keen sense of rhythm to prove this fact. Their exuberance and untiring efforts helped spark many a score and pep rally. By knitting the crowd together with exuberant yells and by living good sportsmanship every tense moment of the games, our perky pepsters proved to be true incentives for victory. With the continued co-operation of sports-minded fans, these human dynamos will inspire all of Berkley's teams to do their best and boost Berkley.

Critics of American education frequently insist that all extra-curricular organizations are unnecessary "frills" and should be abolished so we could return to "a good old-fashioned" all-academic school . . . in other words, that building the mind should be the sole purpose of education.

Yet what satisfaction can life offer us, regardless of our scholastic achievement, if we are unable, or afraid, to get along in a world full of people? Without a healthy personality to motivate it, a brilliant mind will be of little value. And a personality cannot build itself; it can only be built through working and playing together with different kinds of people in many different situations. The extra-curricular activities at Berkley High School offer everyone the opportunity to gain this invaluable experience in meeting and knowing people, and, at the same time, to enjoy a favorite hobby or recreation with those who share the same interests. These activities are an essential part of our building.

THE PERSONALITY

Reduced to twenty-five members, the 1961 Berkley Student Council proved much more efficient than past groups.

The Friday assemblies were organized and supervised by a Student Council committee working under the guidance of Mrs. Bernstein.

Berkley High School's student government is one of the most active in this area. It is made up of two houses: the Student Council and the Principal's Cabinet.

The Student Council is the main part of the student government. Formed to better student-faculty relations, adjust student problems with the faculty and administration, and to aid students in adjusting to school life, the Council works in close contact with the administration to further school improvements. This year the Council members were elected at large by the student body instead of by home-rooms as in previous years.

The many projects of the council include the sponsoring of a work day to raise money for the American Field Service. During this work day students work for residents around the community as well as having a car wash here at school. They also had a Christmas candy sale this year. The Council is responsible for the homecoming ceremonies and the Inter-Lakes Talent Assembly.

The Principal's Cabinet is a new endeavor for Berkley High this year. The Cabinet consists of seven representatives from each grade who meet with Mr. Disbrow each week for a breakfast meeting. The members of the Cabinet are selected at the end of the year through application except for the sophomore representatives who are selected at the beginning of the year.

The aims of the Cabinet again are to promote a better student-faculty relationship through the discussion and resolution of student problems.

The new Principal's Cabinet works for closer student-faculty relations.

U. S. Education at P.T.S.A. Open House

The Open House, sponsored by the P.T.S.A., is an annual affair at Berkley High School. It was originated to give parents the opportunity to see into the students' school life.

The parents are given their child's schedule and then proceed to attend all his classes. During these 8 minute classes, the teacher explains the fundamentals of his subject and how he intends to carry them out to the fullest advantage of the student, parents, and teacher. The parents are then permitted to ask any questions that they may have about the course. Private counseling is also given after the classes.

Some parents find their children's school life baffling, others find it illuminating; but either way, Open House is one of the big events of the year.

The Voice of Christian Youth is a club affiliated with Berkley High whose aim is to promote a Christ-centered activity group for the school. It was founded of youth, by youth, and for youth.

The group had a long list of activities this year. The list included the "Funspiration" and a semi-formal banquet. The group also worked to raise money to buy a piece of office equipment for the Detroit V.C.Y. office. Twelve members of the group attended the Chicago Teen Convention in December.

The club is also the holder of several awards including being elected "Club of the Month" for October by the West side of Detroit.

Its Governments and Beliefs

The United Nations Study Group, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Zander, was founded to promote a better understanding of world problems, to arouse the spirit of citizenship, and to create a genuine interest in world peace in the students of Berkley High. These aims are accomplished through movies, discussions, and guest speakers.

Research and Observation

Birds, bugs, bees, and botany are here again! It is the Biology Club's annual campout. For one week each spring, the Biology group observes nature in its natural habitat at the Waterloo Recreation Area. Here the students learn the principles of conservation of our natural resources along with practical biology and botany.

During the year the club members meet regularly to discuss new and old scientific principles. At each meeting there is a guest speaker to discuss new advances in science with them. Another activity was the sponsorship of a dance, "Cold Winter's Night."

The Berkley Student Research Program is an organization devoted to sponsoring responsible research on the part of capable B.H.S. students. The club was organized in 1957 when a small group decided to build a cyclotron. Since that time, this the cyclotron has been their main project. With the help of donations from businesses, and various other organizations around the city, the 2-1/2 ton machine is starting to take shape.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Bradner, the group also explores other fields of science from rockets to plants.

The Berkley High School Dramatics Club is a group of young men and women drawn together by a common interest and dedication: that of acting. The members strive toward two main goals throughout the year: a deeper appreciation of theatrical presentations and a wider experience of personal participation and performance.

The varied activities of this organization, under the direction of Mrs. Bernstein, included ushering at Wayne State, attendance at plays at the Cass, Shubert and Vanguard theaters, and the production of a benefit play for the Sarah Fisher home for children. The schedule also included the annual Dramatics Club initiation and an assembly.

The Forensics Organization was one of the more active groups this year; it participated in numerous and various activities. Under the sponsorship of Mr. D. Fisher, the debate team won five of its nine scrimmage contests. The debate topic — Resolved: "That the United Nations Should Be Significantly Strengthened" — led the debaters to the district elimination, but the Berkley team lost to experienced Royal Oak Kimball in the second round.

The debaters were also fortunate enough to participate in two debate clinics, the first at the University of Michigan and the second at Wayne State University.

The A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Mr. William DeMaria, is certainly one of the outstanding Berkley High School organizations. Aside from giving regular school concerts such as the Christmas and Spring concerts, the Choir also performs at various churches and other organizations.

The Choir was founded to give those students with special musical ability an opportunity to be a member of a semi-professional choir, and, also, to promote fellowship through their musical interests.

This highly respected organization also serves as the unofficial "pep club" for Berkley High. The contributions of the Choir to the various pep assemblies have helped a great deal in bolstering the school spirit of the Berkley student body.

In addition to its many other activities, the Choir also sponsors a scholarship to the Interlochen National Music Camp. Each year, two members, usually sophomores or juniors, are chosen for their musical ability to spend several weeks at the camp furthering their musical education.

Recently, for the first time since the Choir was organized, a long play record was produced featuring the favorite songs of the group. Again, the organization demonstrated its energy and enthusiasm by selling the records to its admirers.

President Rick Bryant holds the choir LP record.

From the glee club, the girls can go into one of three groups; Girls' Chorus, Mixed Chorus, or A Cappella. The Girls' Chorus is the second girls' group which is generally comprised

March on to Victory

Early in September, our band can be found on the field practicing for the half-time football shows. The many formations and marches that must be learned to entertain our school keep the band very busy until after the last game. Then it is time to settle down to the more serious side of music which is climaxed by the annual concert in April.

This year, as in the past, our band was a guest of the University of Michigan at their annual Band Day. At half time, a massed band of about 18,000 bandsmen performs on the field. From the stands, it is a very beautiful and colorful spectacle. From the field it is an enlightened and thrilling experience. This year the conductor was the well known march composer, Karl King.

The band received an award for their marching in this year's Kiwanis Parade in October for Nelson Rockefeller. They also marched in the Memorial Day Parade.

The pep band is composed of several of the best people from each section of the band. They played at our away football games, our basketball games, and the pep assemblies. Their main duty is — what their name implies — to give more pep to the crowds. They also play the National Anthem and lead the students in the Alma Mater and School Song at some of the assemblies, games, and commencement.

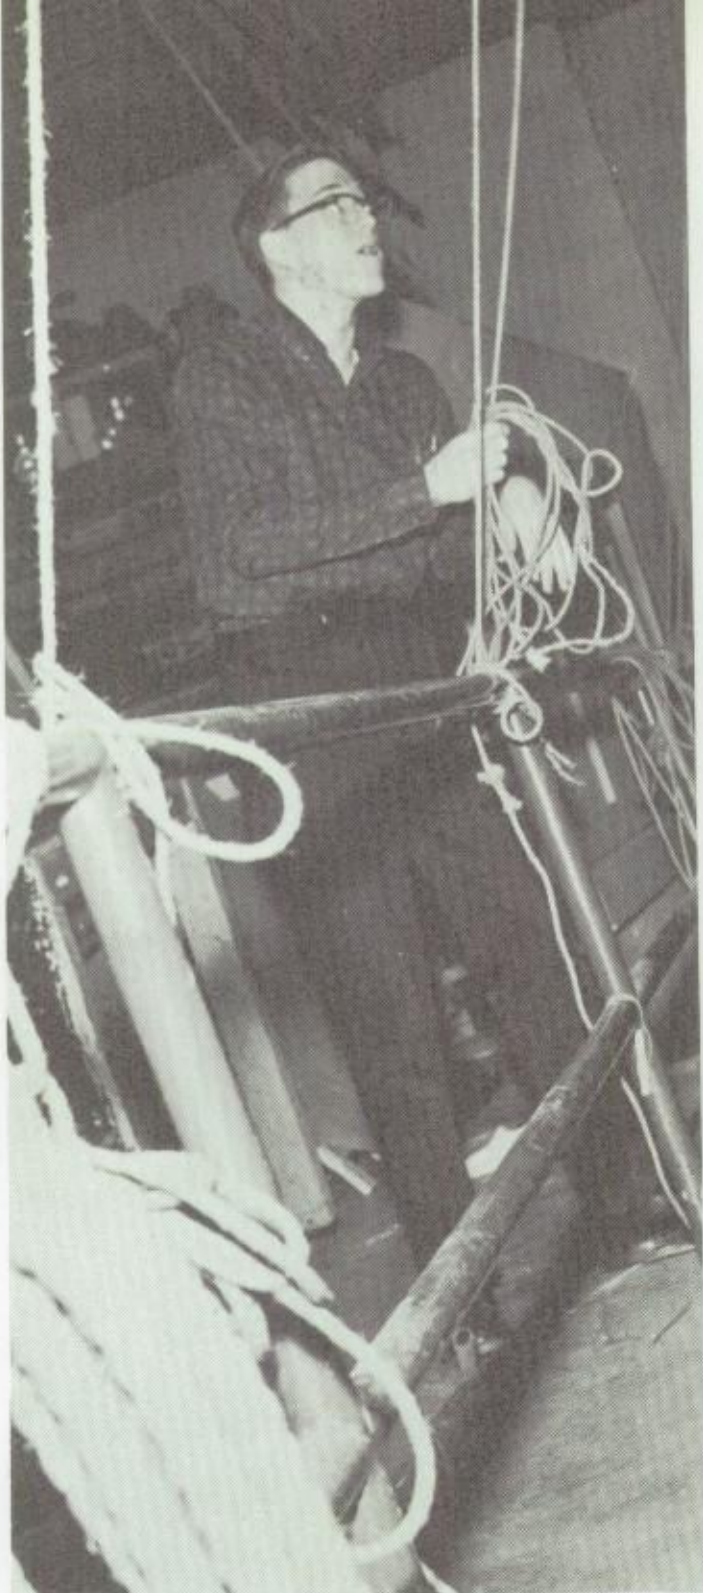

Mr. Magor, B.H.S. band director, has built an admirable musical organization.

The exciting sound of the Pep Band sparks Berkley sports events and pep rallies.

Audio-visual staffers set up a projector to show a classroom film.

The Audio Visual Club and the Stage Commission are two service groups the Berkley High School couldn't very well do without.

The audio visual group under the direction of "Pop" Lewis has the tasks of taking care of all the films that come to Berkley High School and operating the machines to show them. The group is taught the mechanics of the picture projectors and all that goes along with it. When a certain class schedules a movie, an audio visual operator makes sure that the projector is set up and that the movie is properly shown.

The Stage Commission has a much more important job than most students at Berkley High School realize. The commission manages the stage for all assemblies, plays, and concerts. It is in charge of the lighting, the maintenance, and the proper setting of the stage for all productions; and it is also in charge of the public address system which is used for various dances and other programs connected with B.H.S.

This unique group, under the direction of Mr. Dewey, aims to obtain new equipment and efficiently maintain and properly run the equipment that it already has in its possession.

They hold regular meetings at the school to discuss firearms and problems concerned with their use.

Sports and Service

Varsity Club and G.A.A. are the two athletic clubs in Berkley High School.

Varsity Club, whose sponsor is Mr. Finley, strives to promote clean living, the helping of others, and the betterment of the school and its students. The club is open to any boy who has won a varsity letter and is interested in joining the organization. In order to join, one has to go through an informal initiation, followed by a formal one.

The various activities of the club include being responsible for the refreshments at the basketball and football games and ushering at the games. The varsity boys are also in charge of the car wash to raise money for A.F.S.

The G.A.A., or Girls' Athletic Association is open to all girls at Berkley High School who are interested in participating in sports. Under the leadership of Mrs. Pritchard, the club stresses sportsmanship above all else.

The club's activities include inter-school tournaments as well as contests between the different teams here at B.H.S.

The girls participate in basketball, field hockey, volleyball, tennis, and badminton. The club also enjoys a trip to the bowling alley every other week where beginners or experts can bowl to their hearts content.

Future Nurses of America, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Takis, was founded for the purpose of creating an interest in the profession of nursing and to acquaint the members of the club with the fundamentals of the profession.

The main projects of the F.N.A. include various trips to the many hospitals and homes in this area and supervision of the clinic here at Berkley High School.

In the clinic, the Future Nurses have two main jobs; they keep up the maintenance of facilities and they take care of anyone who comes to the clinic for medical assistance.

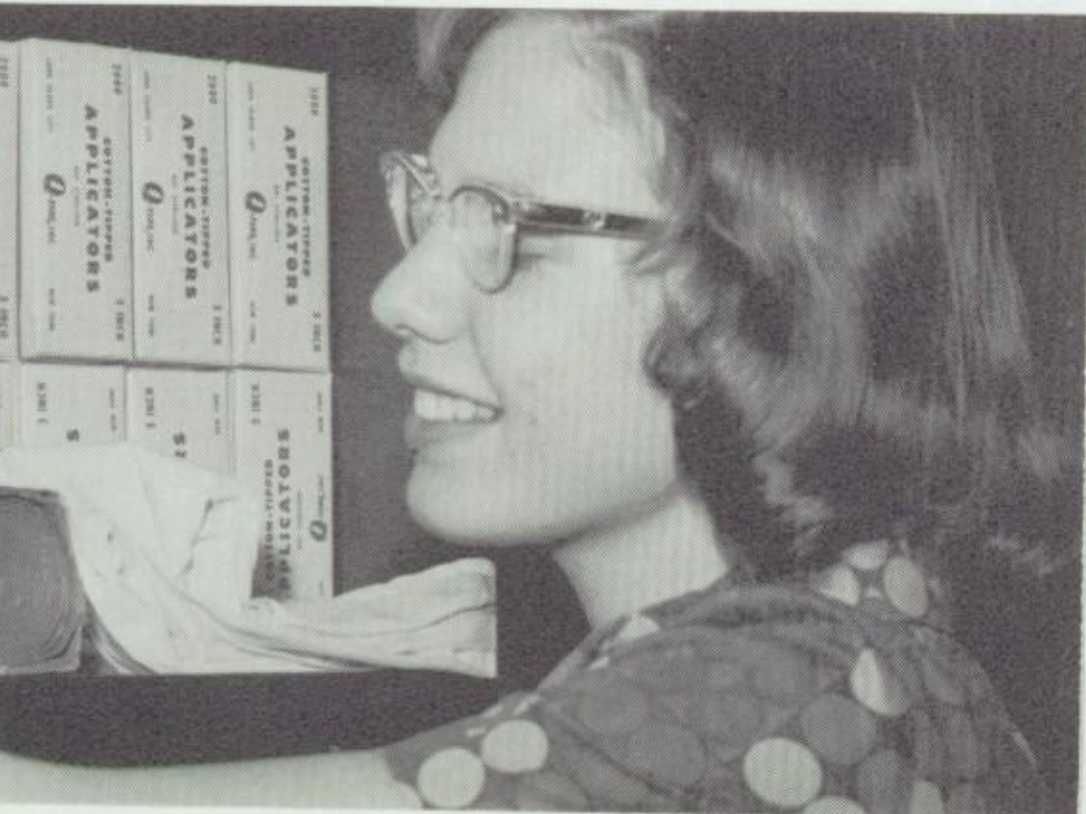

Future Teachers of America is a club which strives to create an interest in the teaching profession and to familiarize its members with the many different areas of teaching.

Under the leadership of Colin D. Two members of the club were delegates to this conference. Other activities of the club include visits to various colleges in Michigan and a cadet teaching program.

To inform Berkleyites on happenings in other high schools, the Spectator initiated a news-exchange column. In addition, the quality of the regular news, features, and sports articles was considerably improved. Before certain important dates, such as Christmas and the Presidential election, special issues of the Spectator covered the occasion.

Top Students

The National Honor Society is an organization set up to honor those high school students who are outstanding in character, service, leadership, and scholarship.

The constitution of the Berkley chapter provides that we may elect 10 per cent of the Senior Class and 5 per cent of the Junior Class. Any student who has an honor point average of 2.8 or above is automatically eligible for election. The electing is done by the entire faculty of the high school, once a year, in the spring.

Election to the National Honor Society is one of the highest honors a student of Berkley High can have bestowed upon him.

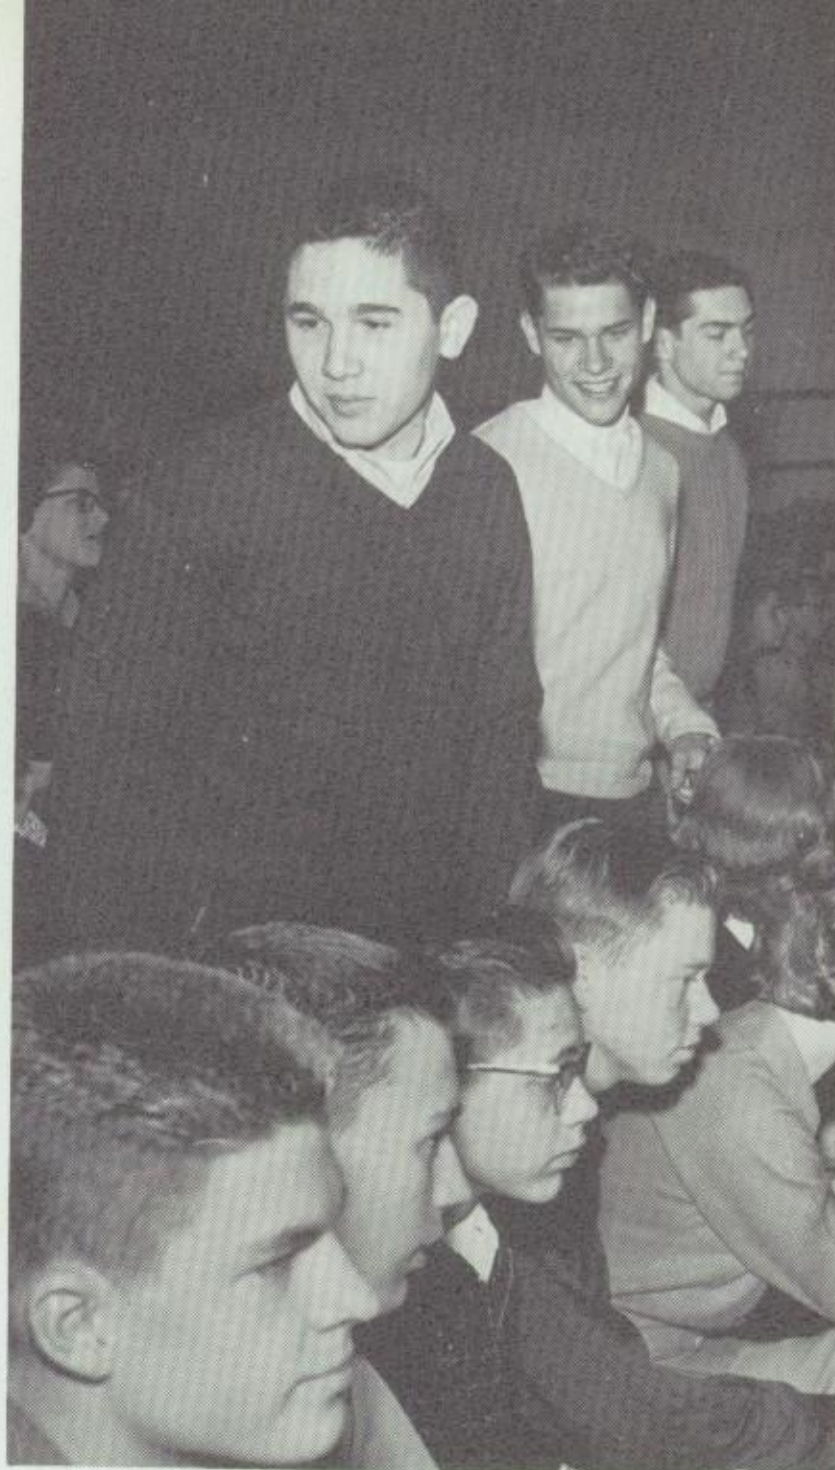

The impressive induction ceremony is held the night after new members are publicly announced.

It's an exciting moment as Miss Redman announces the new members at the NHS assembly in April.

When we returned to school last September, we had a feeling that our Senior year would pass quickly — too quickly, for most of us. In spite of this premonition, we were caught off guard by the incredible cyclone of activity that engulfs every Senior and obscures the fast-moving calendar. Now the dust begins to settle. We again see the calendar . . . and suddenly we realize our high school days are over.

Where did the year go? We try to think back, but we can remember nothing but the cyclone itself. The moments we would like to take with us are hazy.

On the following pages we will see a month-by-month close-up of the most exciting and unusual moments of our last, best year at Berkley. They are, for the most part, happy times, the moments that will cause us to look back and say, "I didn't know how lucky I was then!" Years from now, these are the things we will want to recall while we are building memories.

BUILDING MEMORIES

September - Construction - Confusion

Sophomores aren't the only ones with schedule problems as seniors Carole Ford and Sheri Kocik discover.

September, 1960, brought an era of surprises to the students of B.H.S. Most of the books big brothers had given us were replaced by new editions. New courses were offered which meant more new textbooks. Due to confusion some of us sold, bought, and then resold a Guide to Modern English. Even the situation in the Congo didn't change as rapidly or as frequently as our September bell system. The daily schedule changed from five homerooms a week to two a week with an assembly on Friday. This gave the entire school a chance to get together one day a week and was especially pleasing if you didn't like your 2nd hour class. While the students integrated at assemblies, they were segregated into two groups at lunch time — the "baggers" and the "buyers."

However, there were still a few sure things on which we could rely. Clubs held their first meetings and old friends got together. I.D. pictures were taken. A new student council was elected. The line of people changing schedules formed along the counselors' new offices. The cross country team was winning and losing meets; the football team lost its first two games. You received your first zero hour; and before you knew it, September turned into October.

In days before school began, long lines of students bought books and discussed the months to come.

Benny Prebish tries to convince Mrs. Watza that he was in study hall yesterday.

Confusion reigned as students searched for their homerooms at the first assembly of the year.

Students requesting schedule changes from Mr. Richer are always first greeted with a warm smile and a friendly "no."

The choir overwhelmed judges with kickapoo joy juice to win first place for their float.

From atop a gleaming new convertible, Homecoming Queen Patty Moore reigned over the 1960 parade.

October . . . report cards, clash day, and campaigns

October proved to be an exciting month at Berkley High School. Senior "Clash day," a day on which seniors wore combinations of plaids, stripes, polka dots, and clashing colors, was an important day for the juniors as well. Their long awaited class rings had arrived! Senior "Dress-up" day, on which Sunday best was required, followed soon after. The first report cards of the semester came out this month, a fact lamented by some and remembered with pride by others. The national election was drawing near and politically minded Berkleyites organized a two hour long political rally. The gym was plastered with posters, and excitement ran high as students discussed their candidates and the issues. As a wonderful close to a fun-filled month, came the Homecoming game and the dance. The beautiful queen and her court, the many floats at halftime, and later the dance, "Moments to Remember" will indeed remain moments to remember.

November began at the polls for students at Berkley High. The mock presidential election, in which voting machines were used, foretold the outcome of local as well as national elections, as it has done in many preceding years. On November 17 and 18 the Senior Class presented their play, Lady Precious Stream. Directed by Mrs. Bernstein, the play cast included members of the January and June graduating classes. The play was a "first" in Berkley's history, a Chinese play given in traditional oriental style. Included in this style were a complete lack of scenery and the use of property men and hand props to the actors. The day before Thanksgiving was another exciting day around our Alma Mater. The advanced speech class conducted an "interview" with the pilgrim fathers, and the Choir sang many of our favorite songs for Thanksgiving. That night brought strange doings to Berkley. Girls bought tickets for their dates, held their coats and opened doors for them. Boys appeared wearing corsages and rubber "wedding rings." It was, of course, all due to the Annual Sadie Hawkins Dance. This dance put on by the seniors each year gives the girls a chance to turn the tables on the boys, making November a month to remember.

High-stepping Kiang Hai, Sue Yaffa, and Ma Ta, Sue Benyon, brought down the house.

Honorable Reader, Tim Draper, and attendants, Naomi Shinobata and Mieko Murakami, announced each act.

Students rallied bravely after the gloom of "report card day" and getting into the full swing of the holiday spirit erected a Christmas tree over the main school entrance.

On Wednesday the fourteenth, the Berkley vocal department presented its annual Christmas concert. Traditional Christmas music, native carols sung by the exchange students, and selections from Handel's Messiah sung by the A Capella Choir comprised the program.

On December 22, Berkley Alumni from all over the state were drawn to the school for the annual alumni tea. The tea gives alumni a chance to visit with each other and with former teachers as well as offering present Berkley students the opportunity to ask them questions about college life.

The month ended with a Christmas assembly given jointly by the advanced speech class and the A Capella Choir.

Amid Satire and Ceremony

January passed as a whirlwind for graduating seniors, with never a moment to catch their breaths. The Senior Assembly, conceived and planned one month before, was diligently rehearsed during Christmas vacation. The "You Are There" theme was presented in three acts, and the last, representing a faculty meeting, won the most popular and spontaneous applause — at least from students! The tone was a bit more serious and mellow at the Honors Convocation; outstanding Berkley graduates were awarded not only for their academic scholastic ability, but also for future potential. The formal Senior Dedication was the first ceremony of graduation in which the students were garbed in the traditional blue and white gowns. Top scholars Chris Jones and Marian Rosenfeld spoke to and for the class. After a speech by Mr. Disbrow, the January, 1961 class historians Doug Dropping and Kathy McCary read the story of The Senior Class, President Mike Haack presented the memorial and Vice-President Dave Houghton led the Statement of Dedication.

Class Night began with a viewing of pictures taken when the students first united as a class. Shortly after, Mr. Marnell and Mr. Griffith were honored when the Annual Senior Supplement was dedicated in their honor.

Boys who knew nothing about flowers somehow managed to pick the perfect corsages for their dates.

Mystic Miwaku Mood

"Miwaku" was truly an evening of fascination. At the resplendent Latin Quarter, girls swished in swirls of color, dazzled by their escorts and the evening itself. Dancing to the magic of the Mack Pitt Orchestra, the couples remained in an oblivious world of enchantment, interrupted only by occasional flashes from the balcony! The meal, served as a buffet and presided over by a graceful ice swan, was as sumptuous as one could dream: "baked sugar cured ham, roast young tom turkey, red salmon in aspic, stuffed crabs ravigotte"

Comedian Carroll Fox entertained the audience with various turns of magic, followed by Berkley's talented Jamaican Trio.

After midnight refreshments, the Berkley students left the Latin Quarter with treasured memories of a fascinating evening.

Berkley's talented Jamaican Trio — Chuck Senseri, Galen Oliver and Stu Hall — did several of their numbers.

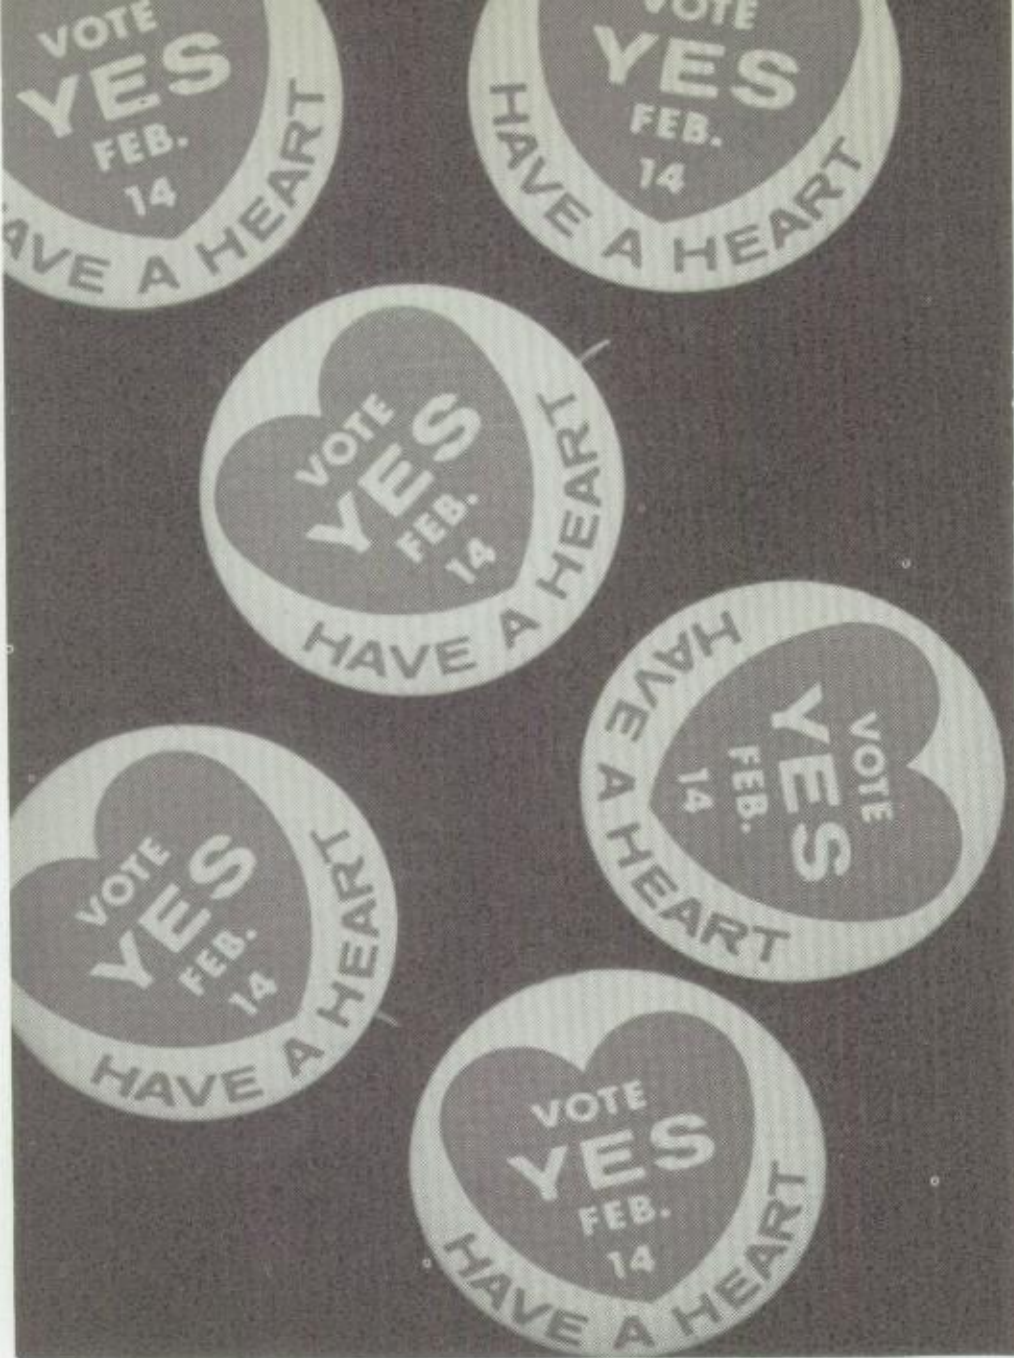

Comedian Carroll Fox had an appreciative audience.

The first event of the evening was a delicious buffet supper.

Dancing was still the favorite part of the evening.

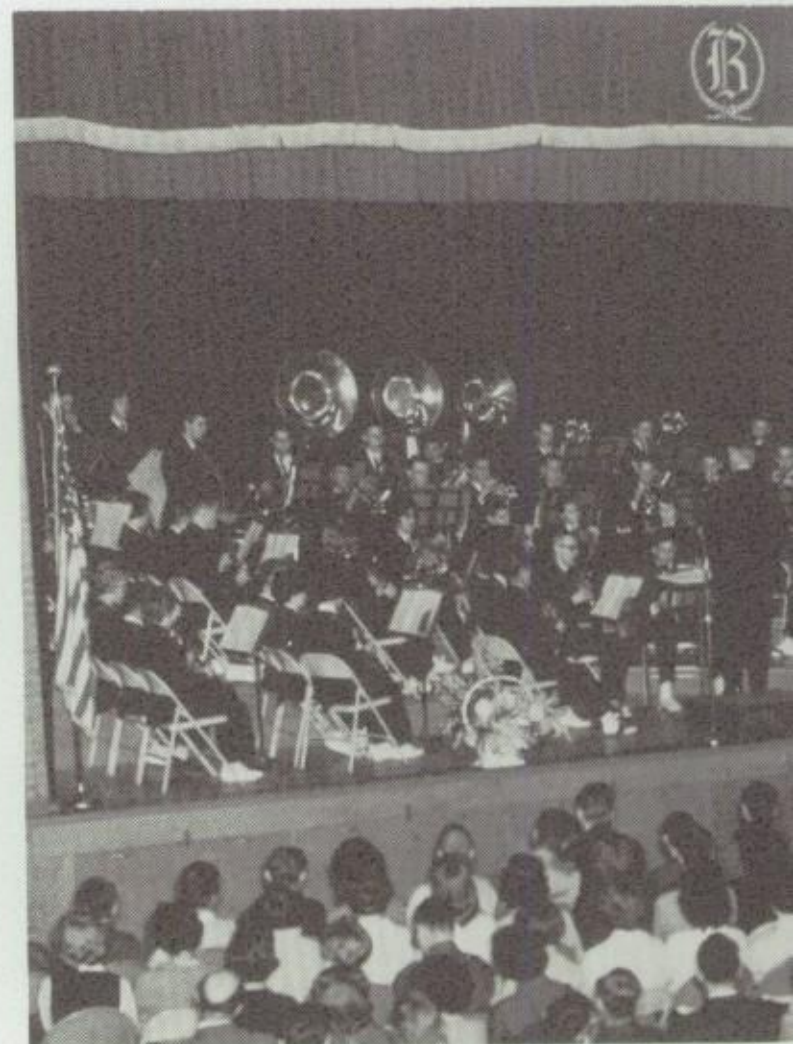

After a hearty campaign by Berkley students, voters approved the millage increase 2-1.

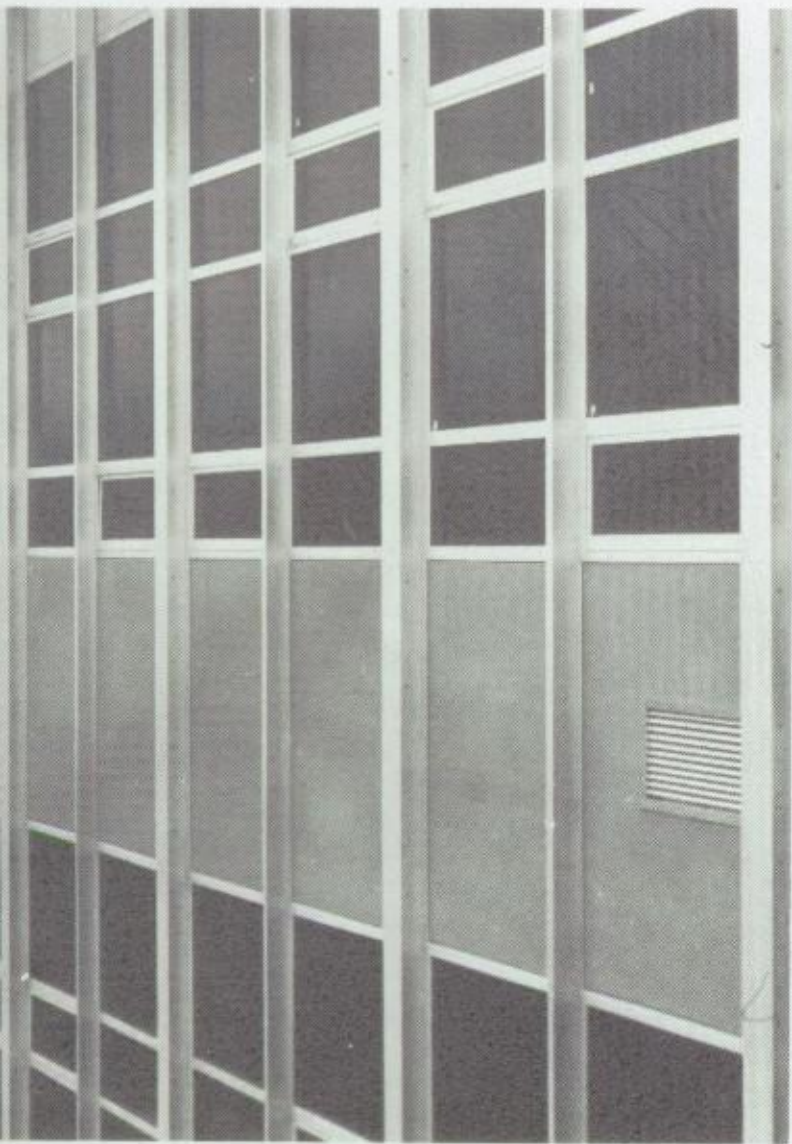

Two-tone blue aluminum panels added color to the new building.

The PTSA Council presented four performances of "Guys and Dolls" for the benefit of the Rock Fleming Scholarship Fund.

February-Show Biz at the Halfway Mark

February brought not only winter weather, but also a bevy of school activities. The Dramatics Club held its annual initiation; and other meetings and activities were squeezed into a tight schedule of homework, term papers, and reports. The millage was passed by a resounding vote, to the delight of most and the chagrin of some. The Tri-C Assembly also proved a success — especially for the Seniors who were assigned the choice seats vacated by the January graduates! Another production, the P.T.S.A.'s Guys and Dolls, played to record audiences; and the strains of the musical numbers seemed to resound throughout the halls for weeks afterward. Again, enjoyment was poured from every instrument as the Berkley High School Band played a medley of musical compositions for the student body at the last assembly of the month. The shining new building which is to be a part of Berkley High felt the gaze of expectant students — and the days slowly slipped into a new month, and a new round of activities.

The Tri-C assembly satirized teenage dating manners.

Berkley's band entertained the school at a February assembly.

March-the Juniors Play,

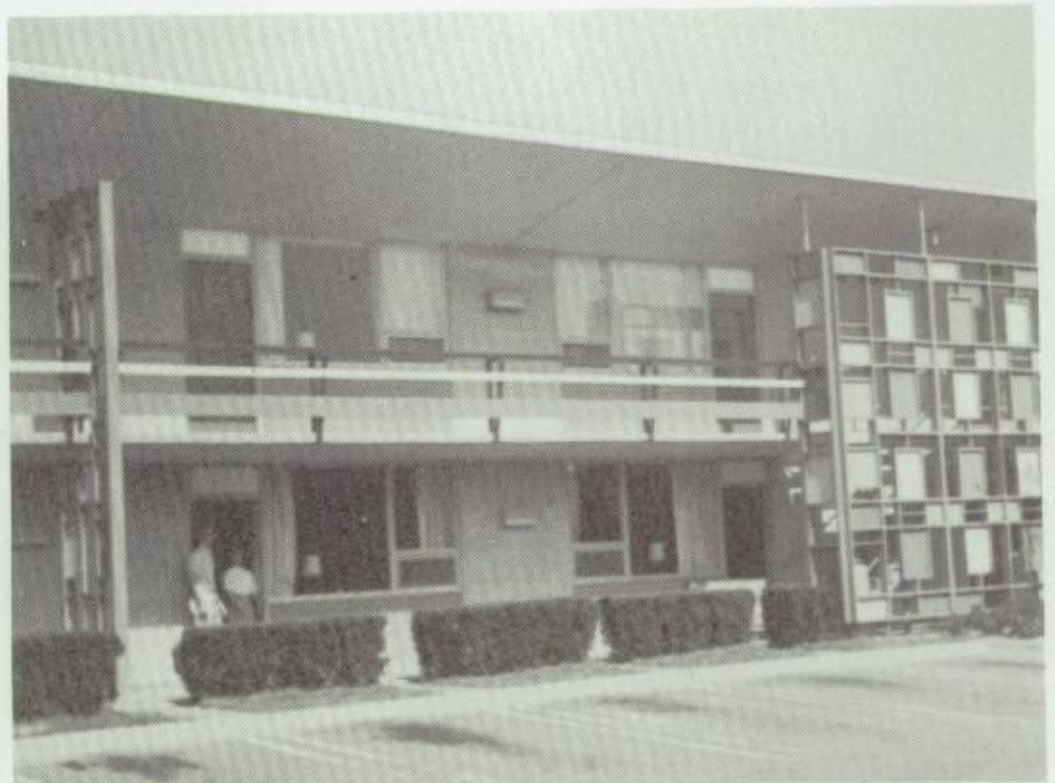

February literally melted into March, and shining new signs of spring added a new zest to halls and classrooms. The Junior Class – after long hours of study, work, and rehearsal – presented the traditional Junior Play to an approving and enthusiastic audience. Again, students were forced to schedule school and social obligations very closely, and "pastimes" truly became things of the past! The month of March also found a group of excited seniors planning and anticipating the trip to Washington. The halls buzzed with excitement for weeks in advance, and then suddenly fell victim to a strange silence: The Seniors were in Washington at last! Walking, touring, and prodding the beauties of the nation's capital left the students' mouths agape and eyes agog; and they readily admitted upon their return that America's first city is something one must experience for himself.

The gangsters have a meeting in the Junior Play, "Mrs. Mc Thing."

"We're marchin' down to Washington to shake hands with President Kennedy. . ."

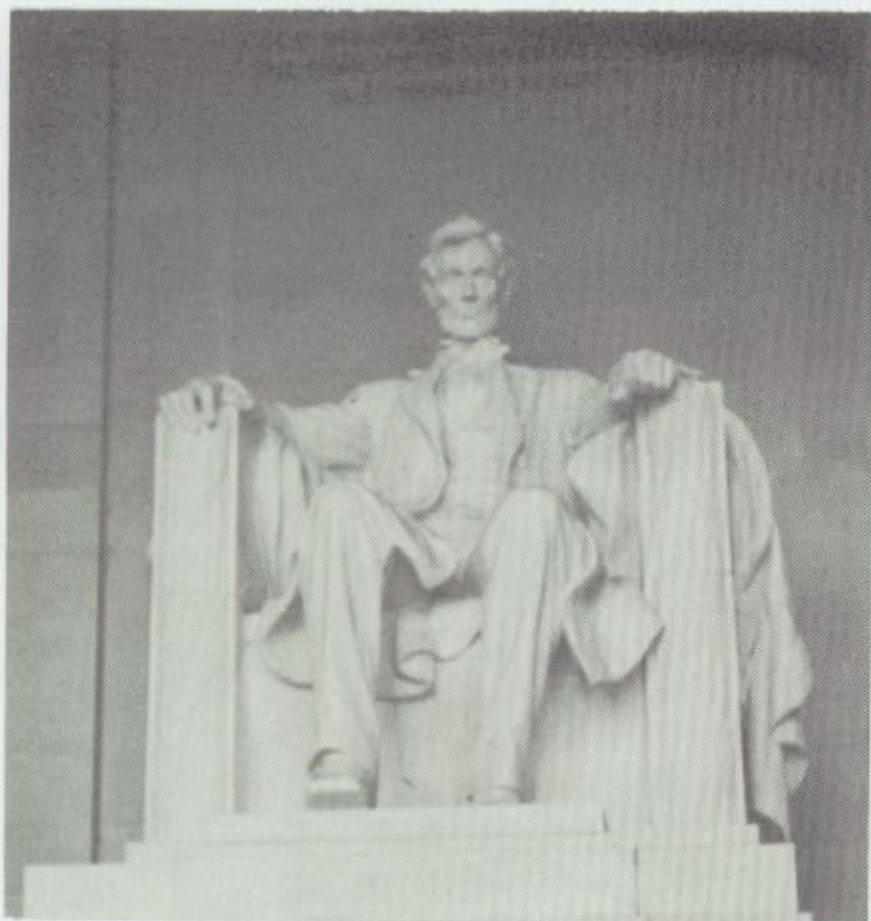

The beautiful Marriott Motor Lodge housed the energetic Berkeley travelers.

The beauty of Washington lies in its majestic remembrances of our nations history.

April Fool's Day is no time to ask April Wyss for her hand.

To raise money for the American Field Service, students transferred dirt from windows, floors, and cars to themselves at the annual Work Day.

April-We Go to Work for A F S

April opened with a bang — and April Fool's Day seemed to set the pace for the entire month! Heads were dizzy with not only the atmosphere of the year's rebirth, but also with the frightening speed of the school year. The Talent Assembly provided a glimpse of the school's fresh, new "stars"; and applause rang from the rafters of the auditorium. The B.E.A. Teacher's meeting provided a longed-for respite for students, whether they attempted to work on some neglected studying, to picnic or simply to rest. Activity was again on the rampage, however, as the Work Day greeted the students with an offer to wash, garden, clean — in short, to work! The Berkley students dedicated their Saturday to the A.F.S. cause with zeal and enthusiasm, making this year's success a precedent to follow. And slowly, unexpectedly, April blossomed into May.

Pretty clowns attracted customers — predominantly male — to the Work Day car wash.

April showers bring puddles, in which we see a double image of the nearly completed building.

Preparations for the Graduation ceremonies included sending announcements to friends and relatives.

Suddenly,

May and June were perhaps the busiest months of the school year, and they were certainly the most nostalgic. Studying for finals became hectic and rather uninspired, for thoughts were fixed upon the Senior Tea, Class Night, Commencement . . . in fact, on almost anything and everything except studying. Groups and organizations brought their activities to a close, and annuals were circulated for the last-minute signing. Senior pictures were distributed to friends, with comments on the back which were as personalized as the Seniors were able to create after the first fifty! Friends — and some enemies — were bid farewell, and tears were forced back as the Seniors gazed at Berkley High School for the last time as students. And as the Seniors marched down the aisle, they carried with them memories not only of scholastic achievement and success, but also of full and active years as students of Berkley High School.

Finals present the last obstacle to the seniors — a big one, as Tom Asher discovers.

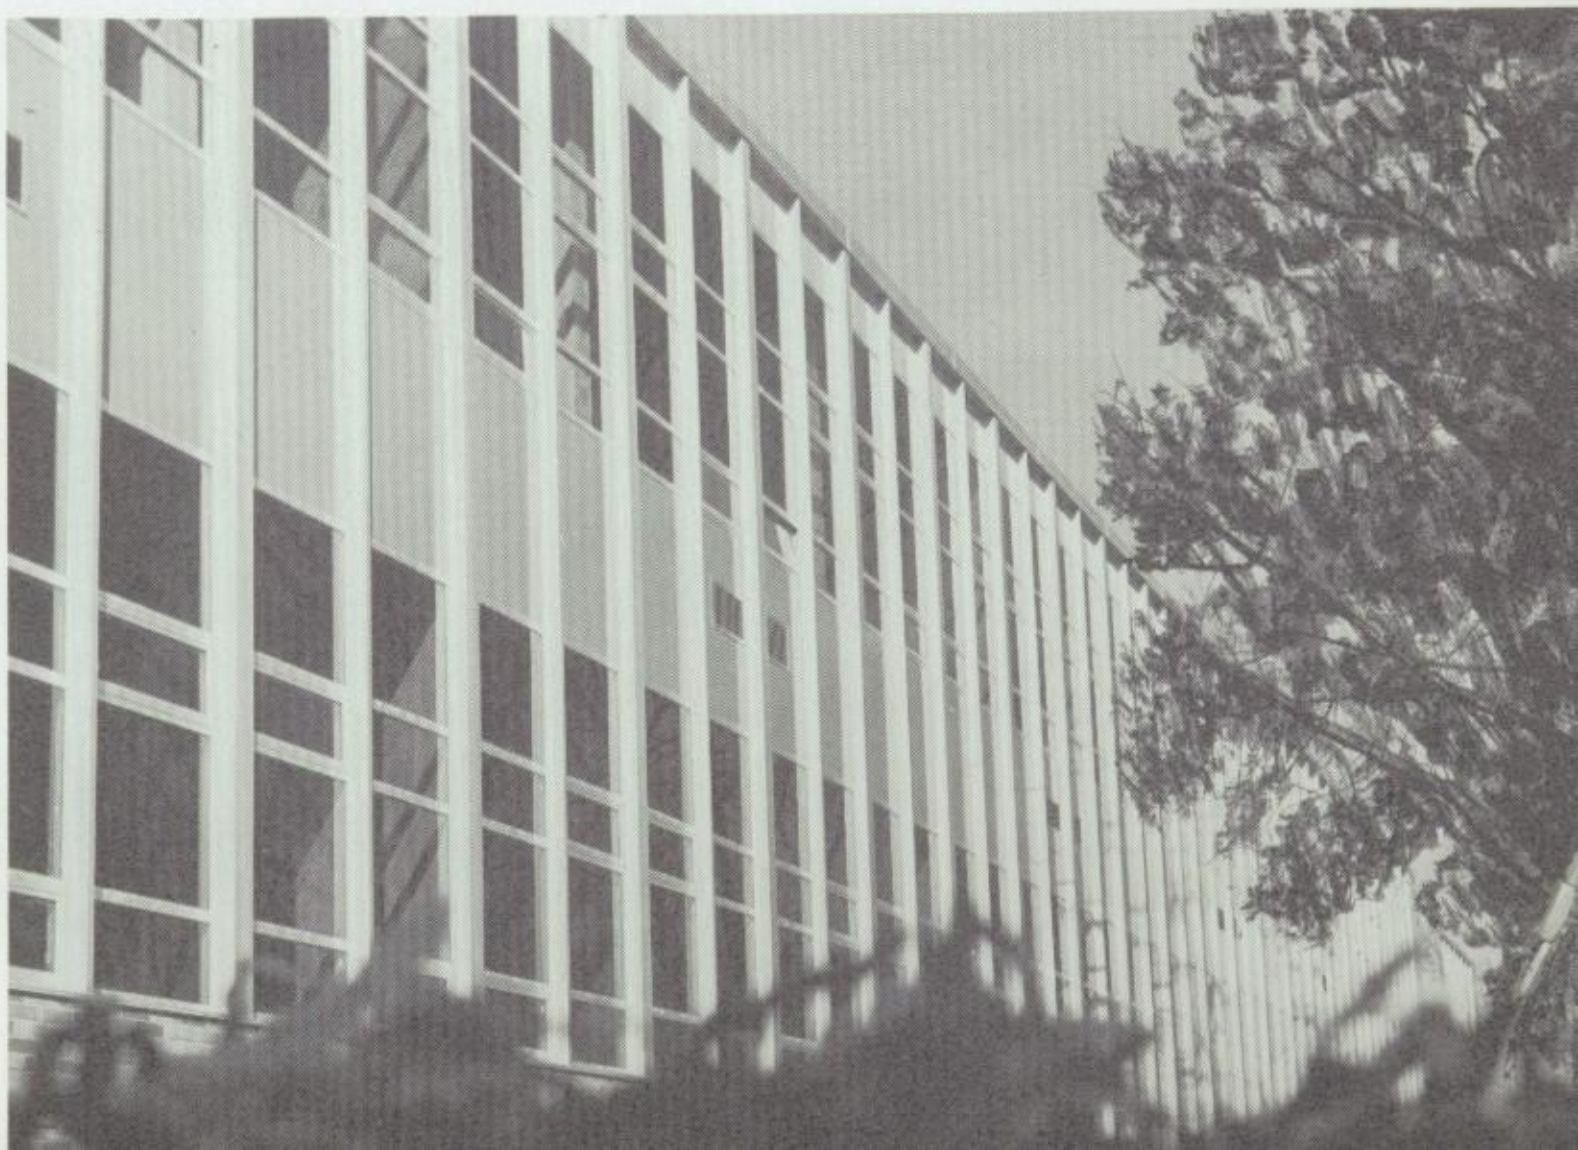

The Senior Tea is a traditional means of bidding farewell to friends, be they teachers, counselors, or students.

It's All Over

At last, the long-awaited moment! Valedictorian David Raymond receives his diploma from Mr. Fuller.

Graduation is over. Berkley High School, its new wing complete, quietly awaits a new school year.

The whole is greater than the sum of its parts. We have tried to tell the story of everything that Berkley High School is building . . . the mind, the body, the personality, the memories . . . yet, like all attempts to divide human beings up into neat, precise categories, it has fallen short. We cannot explain the unknown factor, but we can see the people that are the final product of our imperfect mathematical formula.

We will take a brief look at the exciting adventures of our exchange students. Then, beginning with the underclassmen and continuing up through the proud Seniors, we will see the students of Berkley High, without whom all the government books and football helmets and bulletin boards and prom programs are useless.

Behind each fuzzy underclassman picture and each flawless Senior portrait is a story more complete, more interesting and important than any this book has told. This is the whole person: the final goal and product of our building.

BUILDING

THE WHOLE PERSON

AFSers come to Berkley, too. Mieke Murakami ("Micki") from Japan became well-known for traditional Japanese dance.

This peaceful scene is in front of the Garcia Wimer home, where Marian Rosenfeld lived in Argentina.

The American Field Service Program, under the teacher sponsorship of Mrs. Fullerton, has constantly grown and expanded since its creation at Berkley High School a few short years ago. This year, the school was honored to have three of its students selected to spend six months abroad, living with foster families and attending school with Argentine, French or German classmates. Berkley High also opened wide its doors — and its heart — to tiny, bubbling Mieke Murakami of Japan.

Mieke, fondly referred to as "Micki" by her friends, arrived in August from a small city just outside of Tokyo, Japan's capital. Spending the year with the Rosenfeld family, Mieke has delighted all by her rapid adaptation to the language, customs and culture of her adopted America — while retaining Japanese distinction in such facets as grace and courtesy. As one of Mieke's classmates remarked, "'Micki' is the image of a Japanese American — or maybe an American Japanese!" Mieke is proficient at the beautifully fluent classical Japanese dances, though she admits to have practiced especially for her appreciative American audiences. Mieke is the essence of cooperation and enthusiasm, and has worked diligently on a multitude of school organizations and functions. Mieke Murakami is a shining credit to not only the American Field Service, but also to her native Japan.

Prosperity is slowly coming to Argentina. Pulling itself together after the reign of Peron, this country has just begun to discover its power in industry and trade. With their slow, relaxed way of life, the Argentines find time for siestas, folklore, guitars, and fiestas. The people are warm and friendly. They look forward to a strong country and a rich future.

As 98 per cent of the population is of European descent, there is a sophisticated European air about the country. Italian words are found in the conversation, and pizza is a popular dish. Styles come from the pages of Paris fashion magazines.

Seeing the famous Eiffel Tower was only one of Sue Robertson's adventures in France.

The opening of school presented an opportunity to meet students, learn a language, and study in a foreign country. The students, all girls, and dressed in the white uniforms of the school, were exceptionally friendly and helpful to each other and the foreign students. We had to salute the flag each morning as we entered the school. The curriculum generally followed that of Berkley High School. The noted difference in the two school systems was the fact that the high schools of Argentina have classes only half-days. However, there is a great deal of homework and studying to do.

— Marian Rosenfeld

Germany — the people, the school and the social aspects are fascinating and exciting. The Germans themselves are hard-working people, the fact of which is certainly reflected in their amazing economy. They are extremely friendly and willing to help visitors — in short, they are wonderful! The family, as a group, is very important; authority is almost completely vested in the father. In the evenings, the family often plays cards, reads or simply talks together. Another familial project appears to be eating! The food, actually quite different than in the States, consists of a good many potatoes, bread and beer. Even a typical breakfast includes bread, butter, milk, jam, syrup (for the bread), all kinds of sausage, tea or coffee, cheese, liverwurst, and cereal.

School appears geared only to the academic subjects, and a German student often follows an average of fourteen subjects: German, English, chemistry, physics, biology, political science, trigonometry, algebra, math, religion, history, geography, drawing and sports. Although school often ends at 1:00, homework is an important part of the afternoon.

Wine, women and song — France very briefly to many Americans. Just as the United States is often represented by Elvis Presley and the Cadillac, the best-known ambassadors of France appear to be the Basque beret and Brigitte Bardot. But, just as the myths concerning America are dispelled with any penetrating evaluation, those of France also quickly evaporate, and can be replaced by a deeper understanding and appreciation of the country, her people, problems and potential.

While the interests of the American youth appear to be both numerous and diverse, those of the French student are channeled in primarily two directions: school and family. The basic conception of the French school is the development of the intellect to the highest degree; it is, in essence, a classical education. Mathematics, science, modern or classical languages, French literature and composition, history, geography and philosophy are compulsory in the lycées (the nearest equivalent to the high schools) — to the exclusion of development in the fields of contemporary government or current affairs. Again, while the friendships formed within the classes are often close and lasting, they are generally reserved exclusively for school.

The second deep influence on French life, and perhaps the more important, is the family, which appears as a closely-knit, independent and largely self-sufficient unit. The foundation of the family is based on primarily two concepts: love and respect. The role of both is fundamentally very important, and the French family often finds outside stimuli unnecessary (individual friendships and social activities are not commonplace.) And, although the French are at times noted for their aloofness, within the family they are generous and fiercely loyal — while retaining their individual independence and distinction.

Among Naomi Shinohata's abilities was the preparation of attractive flower arrangements.

The Michigan Council of Churches Exchange Program, under-written by the State Department, was formed to promote understanding among members of the postwar generation. American students able to pay expenses for the experience abroad apply in the fall of the school year, and are questioned before the selection committee, including the advisor, Miss Redman. Those whom the committee feel are qualified to represent Berkley High School and the United States as exchange students, are then given extensive study a semester before their departure. Last year, six Berkley students were chosen under the MCC program to spend a summer in another country: Barbara Johnston and Sylvia Stevens to Germany, Sue Kenyon to Ireland, Judy Sammer to Berlin, Bonnie Seskin to Holland and Jerry Donohoe to Austria.

The second aspect of the Michigan Council of Churches Exchange Program offers foreign students the opportunity to spend a year in an American high school. This year's three German students have personified the great varieties within a nationality itself: the rosey Frauke Karras, the charming Gudrun Schmidt and the elfin Angelika (Angie) Nahke have all helped to dispel any nationally stereotyped ideas which Berkley students might have held before their arrival. Inge Nannings of the Netherlands and Naomi Shinohara of Japan are outwardly very different: Inge is gay and ebullient, while Naomi radiates a more calm and serene beauty. Both, however, are recognized not only for their sharp intellect, but also for their friendliness to all students.

MCC Students: To and From Berkley

At the Tri-C initiation, Gudrun Schmidt gets her first taste of ingenious American tortures.

Angie Nahke showed her slides of Germany to many groups.

The Council of Churches program gave these students the opportunity to study in foreign lands.

Exchange student Inge Nannings was talented at singing and playing the guitar.

Frauka Karras and two Girl Scouts discuss the Scouting Program in Germany.

The Underclassmen follow the examples set by the upperclassmen of the school. The first years the underclassmen work industriously, but as the years progress they learn the many arts of play as well as work.

If they are smart they develop both talents; and if not, they sink into the background. The students who become a credit to the school in their later years are those who develop both skills equally.

The Finest Result of Our Building:

Berkley High School
2325 Catalpa Road
Berkley, Michigan
March 13, 1961

To the Classes of 1961:

It has been a long journey. We hope a pleasant one. You are now at the threshold of life — ready to step from the protection of home, school, and community in many cases and start facing the realities of life. These realities may seem harsh at times. The harshness, however, is relative. If you approach your problems with the faith that you can surmount them, see life in all its goodness, and be grateful for the gifts that befall you, and accept the penalties of mistakes as stepping stones to higher achievements, you will find that the harshness has turned to brisk aliveness and life will hold many glorious moments.

Life and school are one and the same. Each day will be a new adventure. If you have prepared for it, the day will be pleasant and rewarding. If you have failed to do your "homework," anything is likely to happen. It is our hope that here at Berkley High School you have been helped to build habits into your pattern of life so that it will be good, rich, and rewarding to you.

The building of habits and character go hand in hand and have been in the process whether you willed it or not. They don't just happen someday when you are an "adult." They have been building since first you breathed air. While the whole course may seem inexorable, be not dismayed. You will determine your own life's fulfillments by the goals you set, the patterns of your thoughts and actions. All of your tomorrows depend upon your todays. Live each day to its fullest in kindness, unselfishness, and love and your future will be bright forever.

January 1961

As the foundations of the new school wing were being laid, members of the graduating class of January, 1961, were completing the foundations of their future. Just as this building is being raised to last for a long time, so our education and all the friendships founded during these years will last a lifetime. We have progressed from the apprenticeship of our freshman year to become "masters of our trades," and to earn the title of Seniors. We have a right now to pause briefly and admire the work we have done.

Scholastically, we have built a record that will be hard to beat. Members of our class have been accepted by the National Honor Society. The results of the National Merit Test given last spring show that Bill Marlett is one of the semi-finalists, and many others earned letters of commendation. We have had exceptional representation in Student Council and in the Principal's Cabinet. To our Senior Class Officers: Mike Haack, president; Dave Houghton, vice president; Pat Moore, secretary; and Jane Hnizda, treasurer, we are especially grateful.

Our class has had more than its share of exchange students, both going abroad and coming here from other countries. Marian Rosenfeld and Chris Jones have studied in Argentina and Germany. We have also had the privilege of studying with Bill, Mieko and Naomi, who stayed with members of our class.

We have not been lacking in either interest or ability in the field of sports. Our class was instrumental in conducting the "penny-a-day" campaign to raise money for our much needed scoreboard. We have two regional champs in our midst: Don Baruzzini, wrestling, and Dave Houghton, tennis. The girls have been very active in G.A.A. A special source of pride for us was Pat Moore's election as this year's Homecoming Queen, and Joan Mahrle's election as Junior Court during the 1959 homecoming celebration.

Our class has continually been raising money for causes, and we have sold everything from peanut-brittle to rubber cushions. It has been worth it though for we have sponsored a semi-formal, Orchid Paradise, a Sadie, and of course, the prom, MALEIA.

We do not lack interest in the theater for we produced three one-act plays in our junior year, and our unusual but successful Chinese Senior Play, Lady Precious Stream.

High School has not, however, been all work. Our class has had many unusual social events such as confetti parties, election parties, treasure hunts, and senior luncheons. Among the good times were our field trips with Mr. Griffith and, perhaps most of all, our Senior Trip to Washington, D.C. The memories we have of these days fill the hearts of each Senior with pleasant nostalgia which is part of this exciting time of graduation.

Now as we stand in a crowd but alone in our own way, we see that what we have built during these years is not a mighty fortress, nor a tall skyscraper; instead, we see a foundation at our feet upon which it is our job to build. A base for our future has been established and now the complex super-structure of life will be added in the years to come.

June 1961

A Chinese Philosopher has observed that "the longest journey begins with one step." Three years ago, as we surveyed the path that led to a diploma, even to take one step seemed an impossible task. But we took that step, and the second was a little easier, and then the third, and the fourth . . . and soon we were running and had reached the end of our journey. Now we look back — and the long path suddenly seems short.

Our class began as lowly sophomores entering heartily into the school activities, and contributing much to the general school spirit. But the year was primarily one of planning; we became more thoroughly oriented and drew the blueprints for the work which would become a reality in our Senior year.

As Juniors, we began to realize our potential. Four of our boys were semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Competition. We elected officers, finally received the long-anticipated class rings, and were recognized officially as the class of '61. Under this proud title, we moved enthusiastically forward; we presented the highly successful Junior Play, The Remarkable Incident at Carson Corners, worked diligently on the Junior-Senior prom, MAFEA, and — most important — we actively supported the functions sponsored by other groups in the school.

With the first days of our Senior year, we began the final stages of our work under the leadership of our new class officers — Tim Draper, Bob Carson, Barb Stephen, and Ellensue Morger. In the autumn, we were in a frenzy of politics, campaigns, political rallies, and the mock election. Our heads whirled as Homecoming flew by, and the football season drew to a close. But never daunted we waited anxiously for the next project; and happily, the unusual Senior Play "Lady Precious Stream" fulfilled all of our expectations. We swelled with pride at the successes of our outstanding athlete, Steve Myers, and at the Good Citizenship Award for Student Council President Ron Ranck. We bade farewell to our last holiday season as high school students, but nostalgia was short-lived: studying and exams were soon forthcoming! But at last, with a hazy dreaminess, we danced in the shimmering beauty of the magical Latin Quarter.

With the advent of the new semester, and the graduation day finally in sight, our heads were swimming with senior pictures, calling cards, and all of the other wonderful worries that face Seniors. Our foreign exchange students had become true members of the class, and we were all Americans as we cheered at basketball games, applauded the Junior Play, and toured Washington with starry-eyed reverence. The days and weeks evaporated; and with the final flurry of applications for jobs and admissions to colleges and universities, our work at Berkley High School was drawing to a close. Dedication, Class Night, and Commencement swam by in a haze, and at last were only memories.

As the strains of the "University Grand March" escorted us into a new life, we fully realized that our building at Berkley was completed. Our work as high school students is now but a memory, but a memory supported by concrete evidences of success and expansion.

The people we build today will build tomorrow's community. On the preceeding pages we have seen tomorrow's City Manager of Huntington Woods, Berkley's future Mayor, the Police Chief-to-be of Oak Park, the doctors and lawyers and merchants who will serve the whole community in the years to come.

On the next pages we will meet the leaders of today's community, whose advertisements demonstrate their intrest in the schools of today and the community of tomorrow. In addition, we will see some of the impressive public buildings and schools which help unify and enrich our community.

Although graduation may scatter us to all parts of the nation and the world, we will always be able to point with pride and say, "Yes, I grew up here. Look at the fine schools, the beautiful buildings, the happy homes, the churches, temples and synagogues, the places of business. I am proud to be a product of this community."

IF YOU ARE GOING ON TO COLLEGE YOU NEED THESE FOLDERS

You will find these folders helpful in planning the financial part of your college career. The Plan folder tells how NBD loans money for college expenses with up to six years to repay in monthly instalments. Check List is a handy form for listing personal expenses so often overlooked when preparing a college budget. Typical costs are shown as a guide for figuring your own. Both or either folder will be mailed on request.

going to live better than ever before . . . electrically!

You, today's graduate, are entering an exciting new era where you will live better than any generation has ever lived before—the era of all-electric living.

Your all-electric home for example, thanks to time-saving electric equipment and appliances, will allow you and your family more time to enjoy life together.

Your job will be smoother too. Electricity, in everything from office equipment to heavy machinery, will lighten your work—make it more enjoyable.

If you decide on further education, your field of study may well be related to electricity. Perhaps someday, as a scientist or technician, you will even lend your knowledge to further mold the all-electric world of tomorrow. But wherever the future finds you, whatever your place in life, electricity will be there to help you live better than ever before —live better electrically.

In 1957, we decided to name the new junior high school after our nationally respected Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Milburn P. Anderson. To everyone in Berkley, this school was "Anderson" — to everyone, that is except Mr. Anderson himself, who always referred to it as the "junior high on Catalpa."

The man was humble; his achievements were not. His skillful management of the Berkley District — sometimes with inadequate funds — gained him a reputation as an authority on public school financing. He brought college accreditation, classes for both gifted and slow children, and many extra-curricular activities to Berkley — now one of the most progressive districts in the state.

Equal to his devotion, the district as a whole, was his personal concern for each person in it. His interest in problems brought to him was deep and sincere; his assistance, patient and thorough. Every student and staff member he considered a personal responsibility. This devoted work was often at the expense of his own leisure; he had not taken an official vacation in two years.

Mr. Anderson's passing was a great blow to our school, our community, and our state. To him we owe much of our past, present, and future building. Here, in every sense of the word, was a Master Builder.
